- Apply and practice cutting-edge techniques to analyze complex public policy problems
- Engage with public health leaders from around the world to share best practices and support their ongoing professional development
International Program in Public Health Leadership (IPPHL)
Cohort 2: April 16–September 14, 2018

Overview
Mid-career global public health professionals operate in a demanding and changing climate. They must initiate policies, hold healthcare providers accountable, and build partnerships across a vast array of communities and stakeholders. The International Program in Public Health Leadership (IPPHL) teaches participants the skills of analysis, leadership, communication, and persuasion that enable them to advance population health in this increasingly complex, resource-constrained environment. The program offers a strong focus on individual coaching and mentoring, peer sharing and learning, and the development of a community of practice to give participants access to a wider network helping them address the policy and program implementation challenges they face. The Evans School of Public Policy and Governance at the University of Washington, in collaboration with the Center for Creative Leadership provide internationally recognized expertise in a variety of critical fields including: theory of organizational management and change, policy formation and negotiation, communication, and leadership.

2018 Timeline and Locations
This intensive professional development program will consist of the following components:

- April 16 – June 8 (8 weeks): Preliminary Course Work and Skill-Building Online, Distance Learning Format, including two hours of live course sessions per week
- June 18 – June 29 (2 weeks): In-Person Class Sessions, Mentoring, and Professional Networking, In-residence at the University of Washington in Seattle, Washington, USA (accommodation provided)
- July 2 – September 7 (10 weeks): Enrichment Intersession, Distance Learning Format
- Week of September 10 – 14 (4 days): In-Person Class Sessions, Capstone Seminar, Cape Town, South Africa

IPPHL makes every effort to cover direct costs associated with the program, including lodging and airfare for the two-week Seattle Residency and Capstone Seminar. The participant is responsible for covering certain costs upfront, such as visa fees and internet, until the program provides financial support for these expenses.

Application and Preparation
- Application for this program is open from November 17 – December 22, 2017.
- Please complete the online application and upload the following attachments to the application site:
  1. Resume or curriculum vitae
  2. Letter of recommendation from your employer which should include the following:
     - Why IPPHL is a good opportunity for you
     - A statement in support of your absence from work during the two-week residency in June and the four-day seminar in September
     - A statement of willingness to participate in elements of the program that require input from your organization such as surveys
- The admissions committee will notify applicants of their decision in February.

Content and Format
The program consists of an annual cohort of 12–15 participants and the course takes place over a 4- to 5-month period, using a mix of virtual learning and in-person seminars and workshops. Each participant will draft a problem statement for their Policy Memo Projects, which will be the focus of their individual work. The Policy Memo Projects will allow participants to apply the skills and knowledge learned during the course to a specific program or challenge in their day-to-day job.
